

Advanced Elderly Medical Service System

What is the Advanced Elderly Medical Service System?

The Advanced Elderly Medical Service System [KOKI KOREISHA IRYO SEIDO] is a public health care insurance system that covers people who are 75 and older or those aged 65 or older with certain disabilities.

It allows elderly people to receive necessary medical services when they get sick or injured.

The coinsurance amount of patients who receive medical service covered by the insurance plan is 10%, 20% or 30% (the coinsurance percentage varies according to the insured's income). The rest of the health care expenditures are covered through public funding, support from young generations and insurance premiums from insured persons

Health Insurance Card

Each insured person is given one card. Everyone is automatically enrolled in the system on his/her 75th birthday so no specific application is required in this case. The insurance card will be mailed to you by the municipal office where you are registered as a resident during the month prior to your 75th birthday.

Those who move in to Toyota City from other prefectures or individuals between the age of 65 and 74 who have certain degree of disability must apply for the insurance card at the division in charge.

All insured persons will be sent a new insurance card each year by the renewal date, which is August 1, as long as there are no unpaid premiums.

Health Insurance Premium

Insurance premiums are calculated based on reported income earned between January and December of the previous year. The premiums must be paid in eight installments from July through February of the following year. Please make payment by the date specified on the bill at a financial institution or convenience store.

(For those who are receiving pension in Japan, the premiums may be automatically deducted from their monthly pension benefit depending on its amount. It is also possible to pay through bank transfer, so please contact the division in charge if you are interested.)

Attention: Ensure you declare your income every year, even if you made no money during a given year, so that premiums can be calculated properly and you are able to receive reduction in case you become eligible.

What happens if you don't make payment?

You will receive a reminder bill in case you don't pay insurance premiums by the due date. If premiums go unpaid, in accordance with the law, your salary or pension income may be seized to pay these arrears. In addition to that, you may also face inconvenience of paying an increased coinsurance rate in the event you need medical care. If you had a significantly reduced income because of, for example, loss of employment, natural disaster or another unexpected event and thus are having trouble making your payments, contact the Medical Welfare Division to discuss a possible reduction.
